The Witcher 3: Wild Hunt review - a rich adventure born in literature

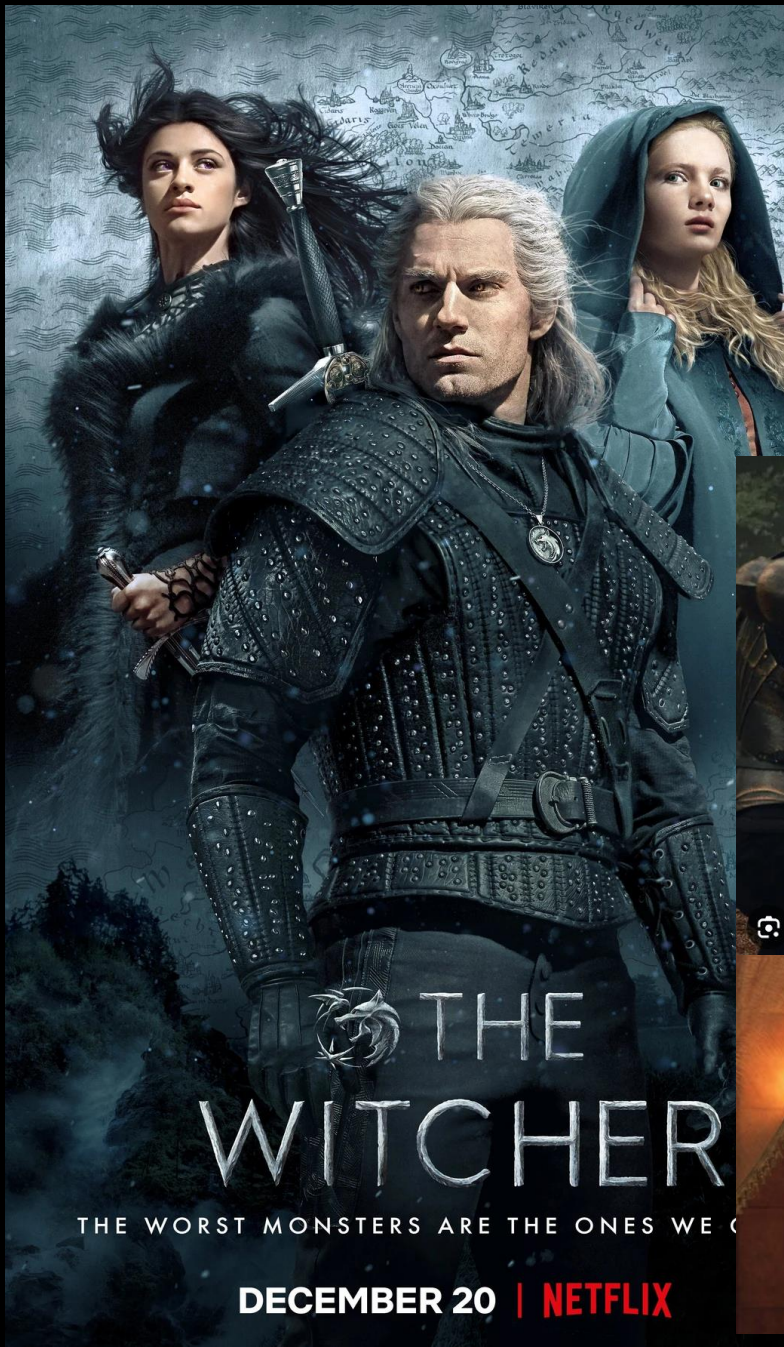

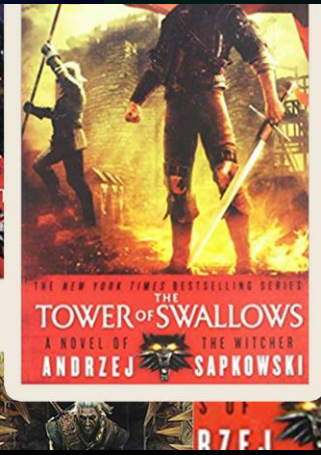

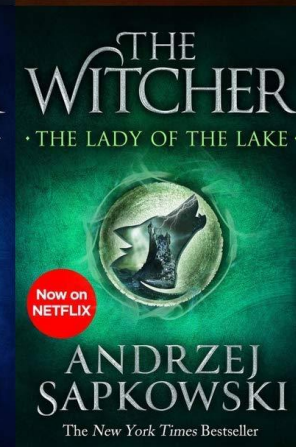

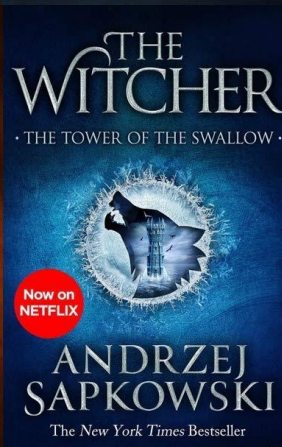

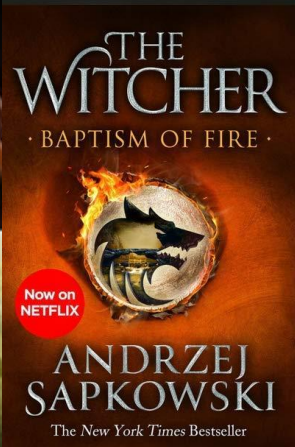

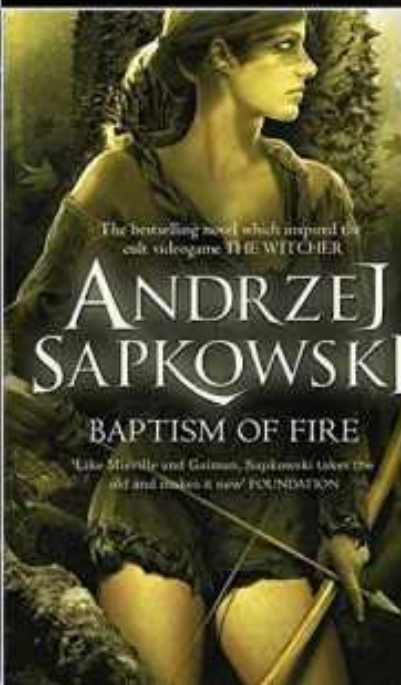

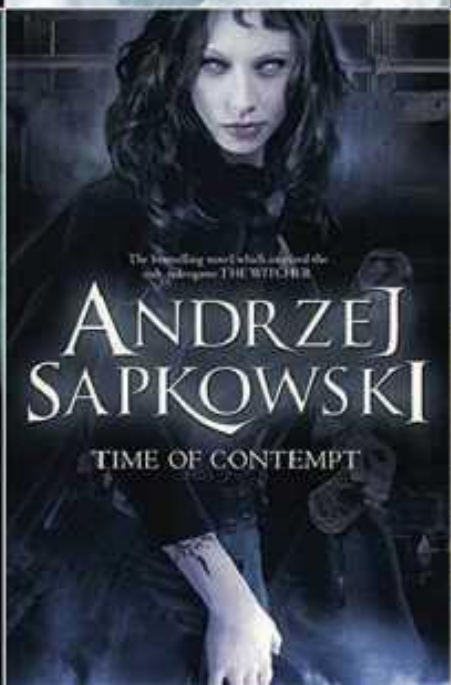

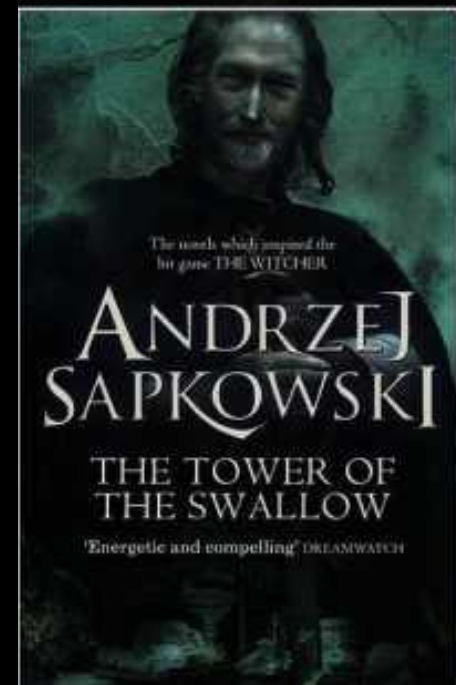

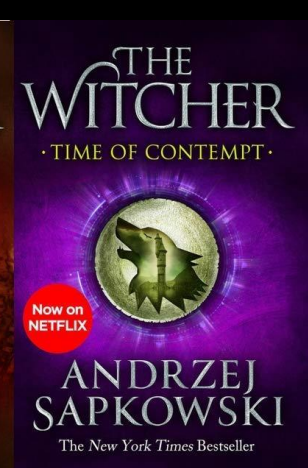

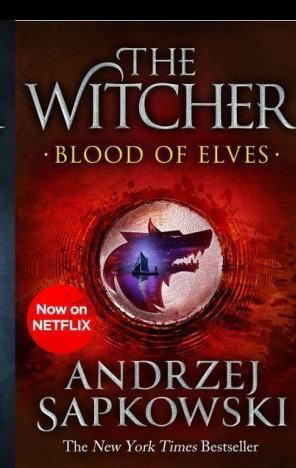

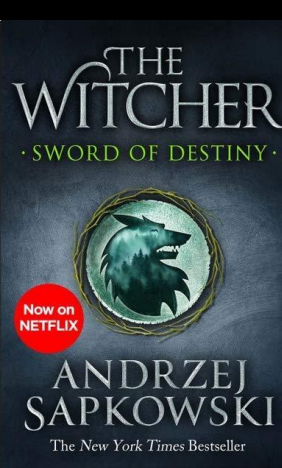

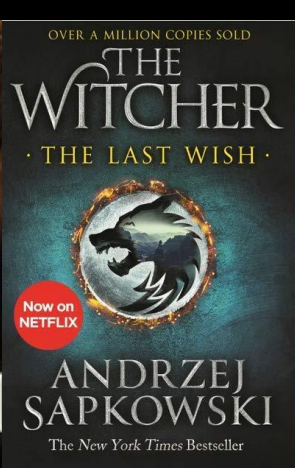

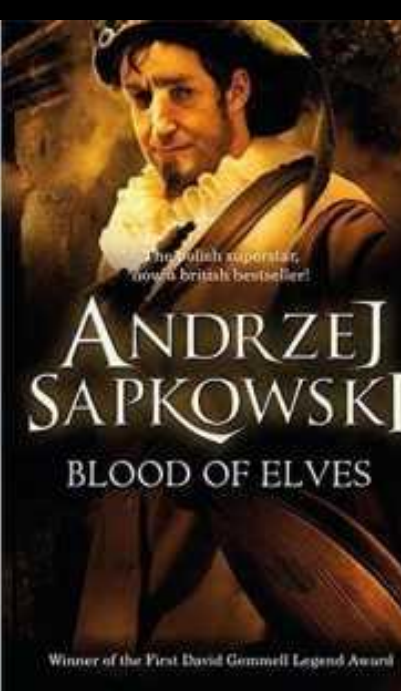

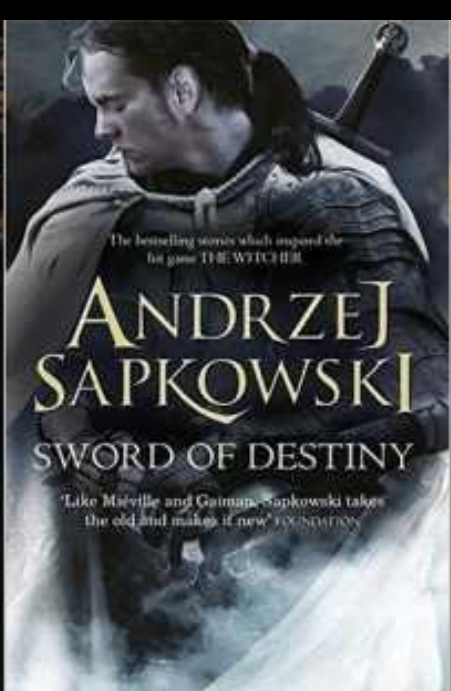

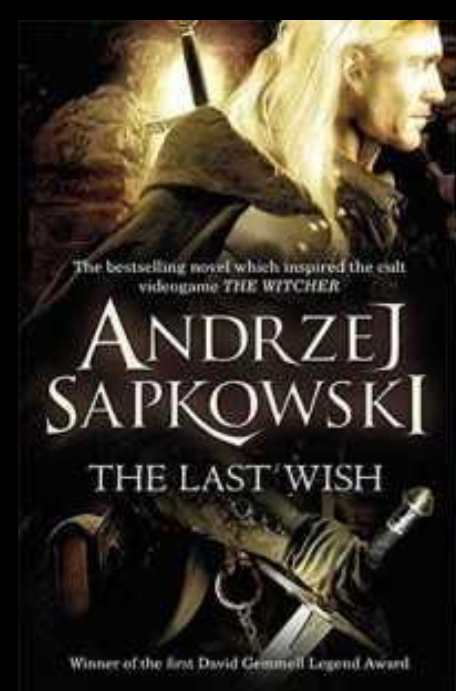

This vast fantasy adventure combines sophisticated storytelling with an expansive and richly conceived world

I hate the casting of Yennefer

Im not a reader of the books but loved the games. Finally got around to watching the series and they ruined my Yenne...

Wtf were they thinking?

Looks and acts nothing like her in my opinion.

When i watch her on screen i almost want to just turn it off and play the witcher 3.

How do you guys feel about the casting choice and her performance?

The writing maybe shit, but one thing you can't criticise is that Geralt, Yen, Ciri and Jaskier are all well cast and their actors are putting in a great effort with what they are given.

Your ideal Witcher Fan-Cast?

Discussion

Since the Netflix show did such a horrible job, who would you put as the faces of the series, instead?

Fancasting and imagining the Witcher was produced by HBO (with book accurate art and descriptions)

The dementors from the movies were literally perfect. I can't see them being topped.

Rewatching a show called black sails, and for some reason this actor struck me as someone who would and could fit the role of lucius malfoy, he has some very good acting skills

Some of my personal ideas for actors for Book 1

I don't know British child artistes, I'll pass over all the kids. Mark Strong as Prof. Albus Dumbledore. This is one of the popular names doing the rounds and I'd honestly be thrilled if it materialises. Despite being a very well known name and famous, he is capable of completely acing it. Saskia Reeves as Prof. Minerva McGonagall A rather unknown face. She's about 63. I think McGonagall is supposed to be in her mid-50s when Harry Joins the school. Being relatively unknown would help establish her in the long haul for all seasons. Nick Frost as Rubeus Hagrid I think Kristian Nairn and Mark Addy are the popular choices. I just dug in deep to be a little different from where the herd was heading...

Noen ganger er sammenhengen ganske åpenbar...

Mens andre ganger må man tenke litt mer kreativt...
